Waveland investigates death of 17-month-old

BY TRACI BONNEY
Waveland police officials are investigating the Tuesday death of a 17-month-old girl.

Police Chief James Varnell said an officer was called at 12:12 p.m. Tuesday to a residence on Amar Street in Waveland for a death. Upon arriving, the officer decided an investigator was needed and called for one.

Shortly after, two investigators and medical examiner Norma Stiglet arrived. Stiglet ordered that the infant's body be sent to Edmond Fahey Funeral Home and that an autopsy be performed.

Varnell said the autopsy revealed a ruptured liver, fractured skull and several bruises, as well as evidence of sexual abuse.

An initial investigation was started, and the child's mother, her boyfriend and other people living at the residence were questioned.

The 17-year-old boyfriend was subsequently arrested and charged with manslaughter. He has been detained by the Youth Court and is being held in the Hancock County jail without bond, pending a hearing to certify him as an adult.

If he is certified as an adult, he will be tried as one. If he has not been certified by September 16, he will be tried as a juvenile.

Varnell said the police department has sent evidence to the state crime lab that could affect how the case is handled, depending on test results.

The investigation continues, with Varnell, Dave Stepro and Greg Martin in charge.

19-year-old charged for father's murder

BY TRACI BONNEY
A 19-year-old Jourdan River Ranchettes resident is the prime suspect in his father's murder on August 21, according to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Daniel Joseph Jochum, 19, of 6238 Crazy Horse Drive, was arrested Wednesday evening and charged with the murder of Michael W. Jochum, 41, of the same address, Peterson said.

The sheriff reported that

Michael Jochum, a captain and 18-year veteran of the New Orleans Fire Department, was reported missing by his ex-wife, Wanda Silvey, and his son after he failed to report to work Saturday and again Sunday.

Daniel Jochum had been living with his mother in Metairie, La., for about 10 years, since his parents' divorce, but had moved in with Michael Jochum within the past two or three months, Peterson said.

Sheriff's Department officials began investigating, but thought Jochum may have evacuated the area for Hurricane Andrew. When Jochum failed to report to work again Wednesday, the investigation intensified.

Investigators began interviewing family members. Peterson said that after a preliminary interview with Daniel

Hancock organizes relief efforts for hurricane victims

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
The sentiment of assisting Hancock's neighbors is spreading faster than the winds of Hurricane Andrew.

Throughout the county drop off points are being established to assist Louisiana and Florida residents devastated by storm.

Hancock School District Superintendent Myrna Bourgeois reported those offering assistance to Louisiana victims may contact the four county schools: C.B. Murphy in Pearllington; Gulfview in Lakeshore; Hancock High School at Stennis Air Park; or Hancock North Central Elementary in the Rocky Hill Community.

Those wishing to assist either Louisiana or Florida victims should bring items to the National Guard Armory on Longfellow Drive. Items should be designated as to which location is intended.

Goods collected at the armory for Florida victims will be delivered by local volunteers. The use of vans has been donated through the American Red Cross.

The Air National Guard training site on Hewes Avenue in Gulfport will pick up donations throughout the county for Louisiana victims.

"The Guard left this morning (Friday) with four or five truck loads of water, food and baby items for residents of Louisiana," Bay St. Louis resident Patsy Cuevas reported.

Young Family's home falls victim to storm

BY T.H. (DOC) TOUPS
Most Hancock Countians heaved a grateful but wary sigh of relief as Hurricane Andrew bypassed the community and inflicted its damage on Florida and Louisiana. However, one local family did not escape unscathed.

Randy Head, 21, his wife Sherry, 19, and their two children, Cody and Christa, were beginning to live their modest version of the American Dream when they purchased a used house trailer three weeks ago. Two weeks ago, Randy began a new job at Gulf Coast Fabrication.

On Monday, when no one was sure where the hurricane would make landfall, they wisely decided to evacuate. By Thursday morning, their dream was scattered across their Bayou LaCroix Road lot. A tornado had peeled the metal roof off their mobile home and destroyed most of their belongings inside.

"We are buying the trailer on time and didn't have insurance yet," Sherry said. The young mother, upset but clearly determined not to allow herself to be overwhelmed by the disaster, explained that the family currently is staying with next-door neighbors. She said they had received an estimate to repair their roof, but the amount — $4,000 — was money they simply didn't have.

A 25-year-old Georgia man remains in guarded condition at Hancock Medical Center following a high speed chase by Waveland police early Saturday morning.

According to Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson, The sheriff's department received a 3:05 a.m. call from the Brass Anchor Lounge on Highway 90 reporting two people allegedly selling drugs and in possession of a fire arm at the lounge.

"First to respond was Waveland police officer Chuck James, who saw the described vehicle, a 1992 silver Thunderbird, leaving the lounge as he arrived.

James pursued the car to the Kiln-Waveland Cutoff signal light where the car turned north.

Peterson said, "Upon turning, the car increased its speed to 80-90 miles per hour with James in pursuit and other units in route.

"Reaching the intersection of Highway 603 the Thunderbird went straight, hitting the ditch and turned over numerous times.

"Arrested was passenger, Little Joe West, 26, of Bay St. Louis. West was charged with public drunk and possession of a controlled substance, Valium."

The driver of the car, Richard Lamar Colbert of Cobb County, Ga. was taken to Hancock Medical Center where he is currently being treated in the Intensive Care Unit.

"When Colbert is released from the hospital," Peterson explained, "he will be charged with possession with intent to sell valiums; carrying a concealed weapon (38 Smith & Weston service revolver) after conviction of a felony; numerous traffic violations including, under the influence of Valium, reckless driving and failing to yield to blue light.

"He is also wanted in Georgia on a fugitive warrant for parole violation. He was on parole for charges of possession of dangerous drugs and distribution of dangerous drugs."

West, was released on a $1,100 bond from the Hancock County Justice Facility 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

Run-off election set for Tuesday

BY T.H. (DOC) TOUPS
The Democratic primary run-off election between Harry L. Peterson Jr. and Joe B. Rouse for State Representative District 93 has been rescheduled for Tuesday, September 1, 1992.

Pam Metzler, Hancock County Clerk, said her office will receive absentee ballots by mail until 6 p.m. Monday, Aug. 31.

The election date was rescheduled by U.S. Federal Judge Rhessa Barksdale on Wednesday morning. The original date was originally set for Aug. 25, but was changed due to Hurricane Andrew.

There are 12 precincts in Hancock County and all will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. The winner of the Democratic race will then face incumbent Hester Plachte and independent challenger Joe B. Rouse in the November General Election.

Metzler said, "This election will involve Hancock County voters deciding between two candidates for State Representative District 93."

Trinity Church begins fund-raising drive

Special to the Echo
 Some 35 members of Trinity Church, Pass Christian met recently to begin the final phase of restoring buildings lost to Hurricane Camille in 1969. They chose the motto "Trinity—Building Back for the Future."

When the winds died down as Camille made her way north to wreak havoc in the Carolinas, the people of Pass Christian were heartbroken to see that historic Trinity Church, an education building, the parish house and the rectory had been totally destroyed.

Live Oak Cemetery was devastated and covered with fallen trees and debris from the church buildings. The loss of the rectory's wife, the Sexton's family and several other members of the church was almost beyond comprehension as church members gathered for worship services on the church grounds in a

National United Way expands board, adds Pascagoula member

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

In a move to increase local involvement in national decisions, United Way of America's board has voted to increase its number by 15 representatives from United Way groups, according to the Associated Press.

Among the 15 members selected from across the nation, will be Dorothy Myles, past president of the United Way of Jackson County.

Myles is the section manager of personnel services for Ingalls Shipbuilding, Inc. in Pascagoula.

The Associated Press story said, "...By a vote of 349 to 13, with 19 abstentions, United Way members approved new rules that expand its board of governors from 30 members to 45, to include 15 representatives of local United Way groups."

W.R. Howell, chairman of the board of governors and chief executive officer of J.C. Penney Co. Inc., said the new board makeup would provide "more focused service to our members throughout the country."

He said the change, part of a new set of bylaws that also deal with membership requirements and voting, "greatly increases the direct hands on involvement those members have in the organization."

United Way of America has scaled back expenditures since its president, William Aramony, resigned in February after reports of lavish spending and questionable payments to spinoff corporations.

Kenneth W. Dam, an IBM executive serving as interim president, said the United Way is trying to reach a financial settlement with Aramony. He said the dispute involves money Aramony might owe the organization for improperly reimbursed expenses and pension payments Aramony may be owed.

Dam said about 975 of the approximately 1,400 local United Ways have resumed paying their 1992 dues. Most of them suspended payments because of the controversy surrounding operations of the national group.

Hancock County's United Way held up dues (which is 1% of campaign) to the national organization initially.

Payments were resumed after a lengthy investigation report was received by each member of the Hancock County United Way's board, Hilda Bourg, 1991-92 president said.

Since then Hancock, Pearl River and Harrison counties have combined as the United Way of South Mississippi.

County suffers little from Andrew

BY TRACI BONNEY

Hurricane Andrew, while wreaking havoc in Florida and causing some severe damage in Louisiana, did minimal damage in Hancock County, according to Civil Defense Director Bobby Boudin.

Boudin said the Jourdan River had a tide of 4.7 feet above sea level during the storm, and the Pearl River's tide rose to 4.1 feet above sea level. Both tides were within the predicted, 3-to-5-foot range, and not much higher than the normal two-foot tides on the rivers.

Some minor street flooding occurred in lowlying areas, but Boudin said he has had no reports of homes being flooded. The only damage reports he has received were the loss of a trailer roof on Bayou La Croix road, and the toppling of a tree in Kiln.

He added that a piece of the seawall fell into the bay in the Cedar Point area, "but you can't even tell there's any damage if you're driving by it."

A spokesman at Casino Magic's Bay Cove site reported that the dockside gambling facility under construction there sustained no damage from Andrew.

Boudin praised the cooperation between the two cities, the county and the numerous volunteers throughout the area who ran shelters and assisted in other ways. "That what it's going to take to survive a storm, that kind of cooperation," he said.

He also stated his belief as to who should get the most credit for the small amount of damage sustained in the county.

"I hope the churches are full this Sunday. Even the people who don't go to church, I hope they go and thank God for sparing us from this storm."

Applications sought for county fire marshal

The Hancock County Fire District Association is seeking applications for the position of county fire marshal.

Current fire marshal Jay March is retiring on September 15.

A five-member committee has been formed for review of all applications. Recommendations will be presented to the Fire District Association and forwarded to the board of supervisors for final approval.

The fire marshal acts as fire coordinator and arson investigator for the county.

Requirements for the position include:

—membership in a volunteer or municipal fire department;

—fire related knowledge;

—ability to work with board of supervisors and other county personnel;

—ability to coordinate activities and obtain reports from all county fire departments;

—credibility with county fire departments;

—and more information upon request.

Applications may be obtained at the county's fire marshal office and must be returned to same office by September 2.

TED regs in effect Sept. 1

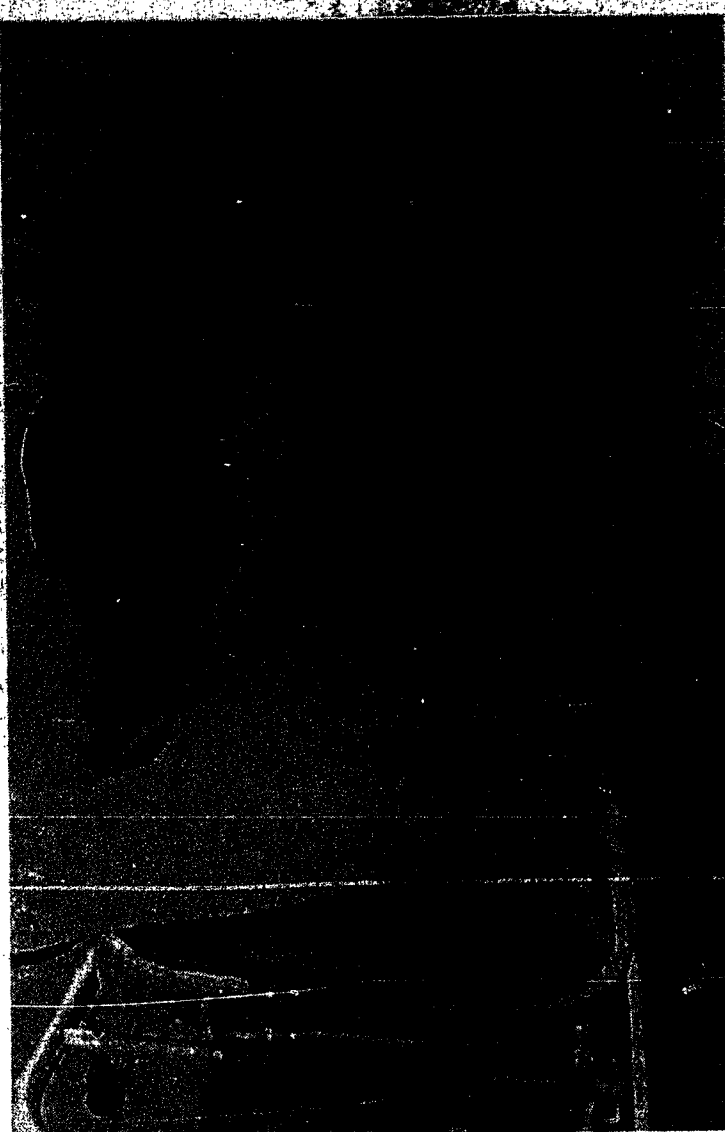

New TED regulations, which among other things, will require all shrimpers using trawl gear to have a TED installed in all waters year round.

The only exceptions will be bait boats, skimmer and butterfly rigs, and trawls which are retrieved by hand.

According to Charles Oravetz of the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) Southeast Regional Office, these regulations are scheduled to go into effect starting Sept. 1, 1992.

A hearing was held in Biloxi on July 24 in order to allow fishermen to comment on the new regulations, but was poorly attended. Only one industry member elected to make a statement for the hearing record.

The small turnout by local fishermen did present an opportunity for lively discussion between fishermen and Dr. Andy Kemmerer, director of NMFS Southeast Region.

Stingray victim

An ambulance service employee and step-mother, Melanie Akunna Romano, assist Jordan Romano, 10, of Hammond, La., August 22 after he suffered an injury from a stingray along the beach in Pass Christian. Romano's father said his son was taken to Hancock Medical Center where the boy was treated with hot water, which helped relieve the pain, an antibiotic cream and a bandage. Romano said he was windsurfing that day and noticed a great number of stingrays in the water. He said he believed they were close to shore this time of year for breeding. Romano reported that his son suffered no lasting effects from the incident. (Photo by T. H. "Doc" Toups)

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Several times this past week, I heard Civil Defense director Bobby Boudin say, "I feel that every church in Hancock County should be full Sunday."

Boudin of course, was referring to how well our county fared when Hurricane Andrew turned North towards the mouth of the Mississippi River and entered Louisiana.

Surely there were those who had to flee their homes in the low areas, as we had four to five-foot tides.

It certainly could have been worse with 100-plus-miles-per-hour winds and 10-20-foot tides.

We do have a deep feeling for our neighbors in Louisiana and Florida who received the brunt of Andrew.

The Mississippi Air National Guard in Gulfport is collecting food items, batteries, candles, flashlights, bottled water, baby needs, such as diapers, etc.

Also several stores have had boxes placed in them for food items.

The Waveland Fire Department is also a collection point.

One convoy of National Guard trucks left for Houma on Friday and another load will be going to Louisiana on Tuesday or Wednesday, according to Patsy Cuevas, wife of my brother MSGT. Felton Cuevas, who is coordinating the collections from Hancock County.

Patsy can be reached at 467-3248.

There is no need for clothing, because they have already received more than is needed at this time.

The Air National Guard Station is on Hewes Avenue in Gulfport past the old airport terminal and it is open from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. and is a collection point, too, for items for Andrew's survivors.

The Air National Guard in Gulfport is a training site for several units from Louisiana.

I understand my brother Felton has spent very little time at home since the storm.

The 1355th of the Mississippi Army National Guard Armory on Longfellow Road is also collecting for victims of Louisiana.

I also heard on Friday that the Waveland American Legion Post No. 77 will be taking a bus load of donations to Louisiana.

If you would like to make a donation for the victims of Andrew in Florida, you can do so at one of the above locations.

Democratic qualified electors who vote in the new House of Representatives District (above Interstate 10 in Hancock County) do not want to forget to vote on Tuesday.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. The new district also has precincts in Pearl River, Harrison and Stone counties.

The run-off is between Harry L. Frierson Jr. and Joe B. Rouse.

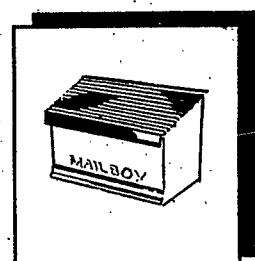

The Democratic nominee will face Republican Hester Plauche and Independent Hilda Bourg in the November general election.

So, be sure to vote Tuesday.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bay High Fine Arts Assn. needs donations

Dear Editor,

The Bay High Fine Arts Association is starting its 1992-93 membership drive this month. We are also making plans for a successful year of great entertainment involving coastal talent.

In order to provide adequate support for our musical events, a piano is badly needed. This has become a priority for our organization.

Many of the events that can be held in our wonderful auditorium cannot happen there due to the lack of a rehearsal/performance piano.

We are beginning a drive for funds to purchase a keyboard that will adequately suit our needs. We are asking our city and county officials, as well as organizations, businesses, and friends for donations. Our goal is $5,000. By giving a donation of $100 or more, a donor becomes a Gold Patron of the Fine Arts Association, and most importantly, supports providing a way for the youth of our community to be exposed to the world of music, art, dance and theatre.

Sincerely,
Olive T. McKenna association president

President's visit should have been on Page 1

Dear Editor,

The President and Vice President of the United States paid a visit to the Mississippi Gulf Coast on Friday, August 21. It was their first stop after the G.O.P. National Convention. The announcement of the time and place was on Page 5A of your August 20 edition.

It seems that a visit to our area by individuals holding the highest elective offices in our country would rate front page coverage.

Sincerely,
John S. Lange

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi
Economic Council

Completing the maze

As children, we took a pencil and tried to find a way through the mazes and puzzles of our coloring books and magazines. They were a challenge which required patience and determination.

Today, manufacturers and product vendors in Mississippi and across the country are challenged by the maze of product liability laws which vary from state to state, and are mainly produced as a result of court decisions. For a business with facilities in more than one state, this system effectively drains assets away from the business and stifles further growth.

For at least 10 years, the issue of a national product liability reform bill has been denied a fair debate and vote in Congress. That's a long time to be working through the same maze.

Now, the United States Senate is considering legislation known as the Product Liability Fairness Act, which sets uniform federal rules for determining liability for product-related injuries.

This bill, with its companion legislation in the House of Representatives, creates rational and fair parameters in determining liability and awarding damages in product liability cases.

The Senate legislation will:

—Encourage safe, responsible products and practices nationwide.

—Streamline the process of recovery for victims.

—Make more products available to consumers.

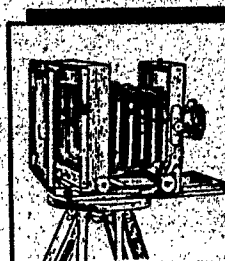

—Lead to fairer insurance rates.

—Make U.S. firms more competitive with foreign firms at home, in other states and abroad.

The cost of product liability insurance and litigation has forced 47 percent of American businesses to cut product lines, 15 percent to lay off workers, and 8 percent to close plants. These statistics are not surprising, when American businesses have to pay insurance costs that are 20 times higher than those in Europe, and 15 times higher than in Japan.

Senator Trent Lott is one of more than 40 co-sponsors of the Product Liability Fairness Act. Mississippians should contact both Senator Lott and Senator Thad Cochran, and urge them to give this much-needed legislation their full enthusiastic support.

By taking positive action on this bill on Sept. 8, the Senate will make it easier for businesses in Mississippi and America to finally complete the product liability maze.

—Pearl River Supervisors are Catching Fits. The people are generally "hot in the collar" and "raising sand" in great quantity on account of the board of supervisors payings $2,400 of the county's money to Mr. F.W. Foxworth and wife for damage to their ferry and for a right of way of a short distance through very poor uncultivated and untimbered land to the proposed bridge across Pearl river. It is amusing to hear the opinions expressed by different people. Some say they can't see why damages should be paid before any damages were sustained, while some suggest that since the county has bought and paid for the ferry it should be taken in charge by the county and operated in the interest of the people. Some suggest a mass meeting of tax payers to decide upon some action to remedy the wrong which they think has been done them and others think the board should resign the office, or ought to be impeached, and some think they ought to be sued on their bonds, and so forth, and so forth.—Pearl River News.

Local forester among firefighters sent to Idaho

BY TRACI BONNEY

Hancock County Forester Mark Jamieson recently spent a large portion of his time fighting a 17,500-acre fire — in Idaho.

Jamieson was a member of a 20-man hand tool crew the Mis-issippi Forestry Commission sent to help fight the 17,500-acre Windy Ridge fire near Bear, in Adams County, Idaho. The Mississippi crew were among 560 firefighters from 29 states in the camp at Idaho.

Other members of the crew from the Southeast District included Ben Barrett of Lamar County and Ed Longino of Harrison County. The Mississippi crew and four others comprised of National Forest and Alabama Forestry Commission personnel were sent west to assist in combatting the blaze.

Jamieson, who returned to Hancock County Wednesday, commented of the joint effort, "As a crew it gives us a tremendous learning experience in fire behavior and suppression activities on very large fires.

"It's also a morale booster for our agency. We get together with personnel from all over the state that we would never meet otherwise.

"This is our fourth year with a state crew. We're cultivating a good reputation with our willingness to work hard and get the job done right.

"We work very hard in difficult terrain to protect our natural resources. Very few people will ever go where we've been and see what our accomplishments were.

"We as a crew know what we've done. When I get back I feel taller. Coming back through airports, all in our red hats with a magnolia flower decal, we want everyone to see that there's a crew from Mississippi.

"We're proud of our crew and want to let everyone know what a great place Mississippi is."

Murder

Jochum, he led them to the spot where his father was buried, between two and three feet below ground five feet from the back steps of his house.

Peterson said Highway Patrol officer Hershel Ladner and forensic pathologist Dr. Paul McGarry assisted in exhuming the body.

"We're 99.9 percent sure the victim is Michael Jochum. We're obtaining the dental records right now to verify that the body is his," Peterson said. "He was shot above the left ear with a shotgun, from a range of about four to six feet away. The shot destroyed most of his face, so identification is difficult. That's why we need the dental records."

He said, according to the officers' findings, the murder apparently occurred late at night on August 21. Their investigation also revealed a blood-stained mattress in the bedroom and blood at other points in the house, as well as a pair of blood-stained socks they think belongs to Daniel Jochum. They also believe the shotgun used belongs to him.

Peterson said there is no indication a struggle occurred.

"We believe the motive was an argument between the father and son," he commented.

Daniel had just enlisted in the Marine Corps and was due to go to boot camp in October. Peterson said, according to the interview with Daniel, the argument apparently started with comments about the son's needing to lose weight before he went to camp, and the confrontation worsened from that point.

At the time of the report Thursday, Daniel Jochum was in the Hancock County jail under a $100,000 bond, and the investigation was ongoing with Delbert Seay, Matt Karl and Nathan Hoda in charge.

Preliminary hearing is set for September 22. If convicted, Jochum could receive a maximum penalty of life in prison.

In addition to these necessities, Florida victims are calling for clothing and building materials and tools.

There is no call for clothing in Louisiana at this time.

Bourgeois added, Hancock school drop offs will be picked up Monday after lunch by the Salvation Army, who is assisting in the delivery.

"I remember how the people of Louisiana helped us during Hurricane Camille," she stated. "We want to do something to help them."

Each demonstration will present one of the many different styles and interests to be found in this highly individualized craft. For example, Sid Lacoste, of Metairie, specializes in song birds and birds of prey; Calvin Kingsmill, a New Orleans resident, specializes in traditional hunting decoys and works with hand tools and oil paints; and Chris Towns, a resident of Old Jefferson, promises to demonstrate his talent for highly realistic detail as he works on the woodcarving of a swan before NOMA visitors.

All woodcarving demonstrations are free with NOMA admission.

For more information on the woodcarving demonstrations or the exhibition, call the museum at (504) 488-2631.

Mississippi State invites O'Keefe-inspired artists

Artists 18 years of age and older are encouraged to enter a national competition sponsored by Mississippi State University to honor American painter Georgia O'Keefe.

Titled "Reflections of O'Keefe," the juried competition will feature selected works that resonate the spirit of the renowned American abstract painter who died in 1986 after a career spanning more than 70 years.

O'Keefe, a Wisconsin native who moved to New Mexico in her early sixties, is best known for her large paintings of desert flowers and scenery.

The entry deadline is Sept. 15 and all media will be accepted," said University Art Gallery director and competition coordinator Marita Gootee.

The exhibit will open in the McComas Hall gallery Jan. 20, she added.

In addition to the art department and gallery, competition sponsors include the College of Arts and Sciences, University Honors Program, Performing Arts/Lyceum Committee, and the Visiting Fine Artist Committee.

To receive a prospectus and entry form, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Gootee in care of the University Art Gallery, Box 5182, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Business is mushrooming for new alternative crop

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Interest in producing edible mushrooms in Mississippi and other southern states has grown at a rapid rate as more people look for alternative and new agricultural crops for the South.

Why mushrooms? I'm not really sure except that much of the information appearing in articles in popular ag-oriented magazines paints a pretty rosy picture of ease of production, low initial investment and the opportunity for making money.

Almost all of the interest is in shiitake mushrooms, also known as the Black Forest Mushroom. An increasing number of seminars are being conducted because of the rapidly growing interest.

Louisiana State University sponsored a seminar in Baton Rouge in May, two grower sponsored seminars in Mississippi in August, and two more seminars are to be held in Louisiana and September.

Almost all of the information being presented at these seminars is from growers or has its origin in other states since neither Louisiana nor Mississippi have actively researched mushroom production.

If there is a question in your mind about whether or not shiitake mushrooms will grow in Mississippi, the answer is yes. They can be grown from the Coast to the northern most counties and from the Mississippi River to the Alabama state line. The main question that remains unanswered is what is the best way to grow them?

Shiitake mushrooms can be grown on hardwood logs or hardwood sawdust. So far they have only been produced on logs in Mississippi. Oak and sweet gum seem to be the best hardwood trees to use which is fortunate since these trees abound in Mississippi.

Most of the shiitake mushrooms produced in the United States are grown in Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Oregon and California. Other northern states are producing on a small er scale.

Southern states are only just beginning to grow these mushrooms and would appear to have the advantage of a mild winter climate that would permit winter production in protective structures with a minimum of supplemental heat (research is needed on this point).

While the southern United States is looking at growing shiitake mushrooms on natural logs, the northern states and most oriental and foreign production is on grain supplemented, steam-sterilized hardwood sawdust.

Sawdust production is quicker and yields more than natural logs, but whether this system is adaptable to the south remains to be determined.

Shiitake production involved several major steps. The first step is harvesting logs in the fall and winter after the trees are dormant.

The second step is inoculating the logs with the shiitake fungus. The logs are then incubated to encourage the fungus to grow throughout the sawwood in the logs.

The fourth step involves inducing the fungus to form mushrooms—frequently accomplished by soaking the logs in water.

The fifth step is "pinning" which is the initial stage of the fungus forming a mushroom.

The last steps are fruiting and harvest. So that it doesn't appear as a simple process, keep in mind that each step has its climatic requirements (temperature and humidity) and a time requirement.

Following harvest, logs are allowed to rest for a time and then run through the steps again, beginning with step four—induction.

Theoretically each log can run through the cycle about four times a year for three or four years depending on the type of wood and the number of cycles per year.

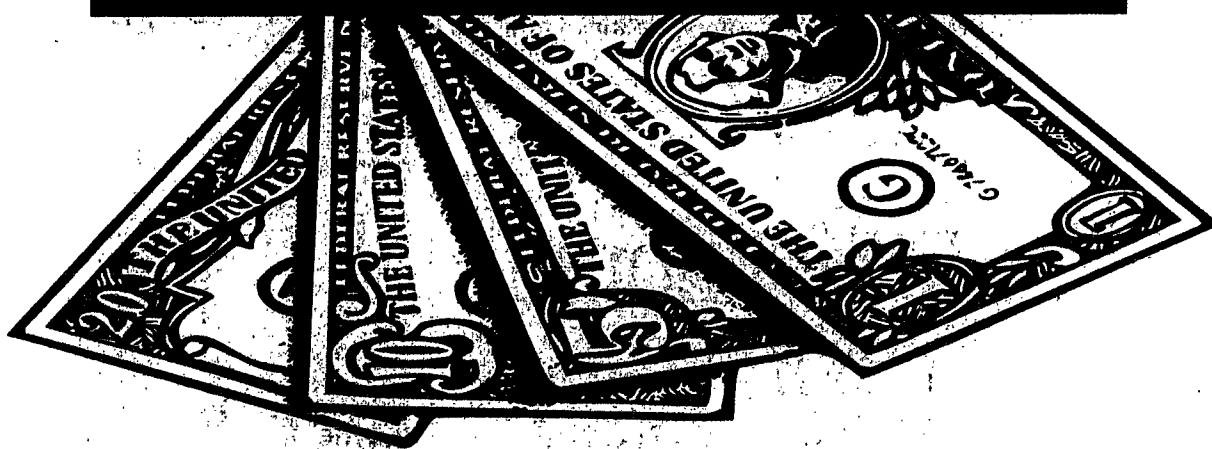

When shiitake logs are kept in an out-of-doors natural cycle, they typically produce mushrooms only twice a year: spring and fall. It is only when a protective structure is used to that the environment can be modified that additional production is possible.

Shiitake mushroom production in Mississippi is in its infancy and many questions about production, economics and marketing remain to be answered.

Miss. farmers bid 115,000 acres to wetland reserve

Farmers in Mississippi bid 115,000 acres of their cropland to be permanently converted to wetlands during the recent sign-up of the pilot national Wetlands Reserve Program, said Pete Heard, state conservationist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service in Mississippi.

"This strong interest in the WRP shows the commitment and environmental responsibility of Mississippi's farmers," Heard said.

Louisiana farmers bid the largest acreage of 119,000 acres, with Mississippi following in number of acres bid.

USDA will pay landowners easement costs for acreage accepted in the program, plus 75 percent of costs for work approved to restore the land to healthy wetland conditions. Enrolled acreage must be kept permanently as wetlands, under the supervision of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan said USDA will proceed with wetlands enrollment with the $46.6 million available this year and will seek to restore funding in the Senate for fiscal year 1993. The House, declaring it wanted to assess producer interest in the program, voted June 30 to eliminate wetland funding next year.

"Clearly, this is a popular program with far-reaching environmental benefits," Madigan said.

"The whole idea is to help farmers voluntarily restore, by 1995, up to one million acres of land under cultivation back to wetlands to conserve soil and improve water and wildlife habitat."

During the next 60 days, technical experts with SCS and the Department of Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service will complete wetland restoration plans for the acreage offered in the sign-up.

These plans will serve as the basis for landowners to submit final bids to ASCS for enrollment in the reserve. Bids are due to county ASCS offices before Sept. 25. For more information call district conservationist Harold Dungan Jr. at 255-3225.

Credit agency changes work reference checks

By Janet K. Lukens
Area consumer money management specialist

Credit bureaus continue to stay under fire for practices which affect the individual's right to privacy. However, the latest problem with the Atlanta-based company, Equifax Inc., is not with consumer credit reports but rather with background checks done for job applicants.

Equifax is one of the three major reporting agencies in the nation and one of the two most commonly used credit reporting agencies on the Gulf Coast.

In addition to consumer credit reports, Equifax also operates an applicant-checking service for companies taking job applications.

As a result of investigations by the New York Attorney General, Equifax has announced changes in practices used in conducting background checks. The practices to be changed involve questioning related to the disabilities and the personal activities of job applicants. These changes are to be enacted in all 50 states where Equifax conducts job inquiries for 14,000 corporations.

The investigations were brought about by interview questions to personal references which job applicants had listed on job applications.

They included questions such as, "Are you aware of any physical problems or disabilities?" "Are you aware of any psychological problems or disabilities?" and "To what clubs or organizations did the applicant belong?"

Job applicants complain that personal associations, memberships, and personal habits do not relate to the ability to perform a job.

Regulators indicate that questions related to disability, drug and alcohol abuse, and religious affiliations violate human-rights laws in some states and also violate the new federal Americans with Disabilities Act effective in July.

Employment lawyers warn companies also to avoid questions such as these in order to circumvent problems with hiring practices. They advise employers to limit questioning to the applicant's ability to perform essential functions of the job.

Equifax admitted no wrongdoing during the investigation and argued that the New York law pertained only to the company doing the hiring.

However, New York officials disagreed and maintain that hiring another company for the questioning still violated the law. The investigation did benefit individual job applicants.

Prying questions related to disabilities and personal associations are to be removed from Equifax's personal reference checks across the country. As a result, job applicants can expect more respect for their privacy.

GE Plastics reports status at Port Bienville Park plant

GE Plastics reported to community leaders and the EPA the status of chemical emissions from its plant at Port Bienville Industrial Park.

Information was shared with leaders and members of the local media at the plant recently. Members of the Local Emergency Planning Council and Local Emergency Response Teams met on site August 28.

Plant manager Stephen A. Grover explained that only three chemicals used in the manufacture of plastic resins are processed in quantities sufficient for reporting during 1991.

The local plant produces SAN (Styrene Acrylonitrile) resins used in the manufacture of ABS (Acrylonitrile Butadiene Styrene) engineering thermoplastics.

Reported levels of fugitive emissions at the local facility have been reduced by 97 percent from the levels reported in 1987. Grover explained that the reduction is the result of improved operations and training, dedication of the operations/maintenance workforce, better defined test measurements and process revisions.

What do we live for if it is not to make life less difficult for each other?
— George Elliot

THE FINEST WAY TO SPEND THIS DAY IS TO HELP SOMEONE

Now, what kindness did you display
By the things you accomplished today?
Did you do a good deed
To help someone in need,
Which that person can never repay?

And whenever you feel so inclined,
There are numerous ways you can find,
If they know you are near
When they've lost someone dear,
To help people regain peace of mind.

Then you'll learn what these lessons convey
By attending your service, to pray.
Let the Lord be your guide,
For He'll walk by your side,
And His wisdom will show you the way.

— Gloria Nowak

All American picnic

Concert in the park series hosts American theme

Participants in the "All American Picnic" Concert in the Park series, display patriotic table cloths and setting.

The Concert in the Park series, held Saturday, August 22, was sponsored by the Bay St. Louis Business Association.

Contests in five table cloth and setting categories encourage residents to express their creativity.

Table settings were judged for most southern; most patriotic; most romantic; most fun; and best all-around.

Picnic baskets prepared by various businesses belonging to the association were auctioned, accumulating $720, which will be used for the purchase of Christmas decorations for the downtown area.

An estimated crowd of 400 people were entertained by The Star Dusters Orchestra, a 15 piece swing band.

The next Concert in the Park event will be in celebration of the October Fest.

43 ACRES with 4 large metal buildings (18,000 sq. ft.), near I-10 & Hwy. 603. Ideal for terminal, recycling or what have you -- will consider selling small parcels.
